About the CPD Talk:

Toronto was founded as a small-scale colonial capital that emerged as a global city in the 20th century. This talk will introduce the history and context of rehabilitation and adaptive reuse projects associated with a number of key sites with which ERA has been involved.

About the Speaker:

Andrew Pruss

Andrew Pruss, Principal with ERA Architects in Toronto, Canada, is a graduate of the University of Waterloo, with a Bachelor of Environmental Studies and a Bachelor of Architecture. ERA specializes in architecture, landscape, and planning in relation to historic places and frequently works collaboratively with other firms to engage in conserving and reusing heritage architecture and improving the built environment. A winner of numerous awards for architecture including the Lieutenant Governor's Ontario Heritage Award for Excellence in Conservation, Andrew has led a wide range of residential, institutional, commercial and key adaptive reuse projects, including the rehabilitation and adaptive reuse of the Historic Distillery District, and other historic properties in the Toronto area.
